Jersey Heritage was founded in 1981 and is responsible for the island’s major historic sites, award-winning museums and public archives. It holds collections of artefacts, works of art, documents, specimens and information relating to Jersey’s history, culture and environment. These collections define the island, hold the evidence for its historical development and act as the community’s memory.

www.jerseyheritage.org

Société Jersiaise

The Société Jersiaise was founded in 1873 for the study of Jersey archaeology, history, natural history, the ancient language and the conservation of the environment. Within its library are considerable collections of family archives, local newspapers and almanacs, photographs, prints, maps and genealogical material, which are of crucial importance as primary source material.

www.societe-jersiaise.org

The National Trust for Jersey

The National Trust for Jersey, established in 1936, is dedicated to permanently safeguarding historic sites and areas of natural beauty for the benefit of the Island. Caring for 23 historic buildings ranging from farmhouses to mills, and over 2% of the land, its holdings are evocative of Jersey’s sense of place and character, as well as its rich ecology and natural environment.

Channel Islands Occupation Society

Channel Islands Occupation Society is a non-political, voluntary organisation dedicated to the preservation of all aspects of the German Occupation of Jersey during the Second World War. In 1977, the CIOS embarked on an ambitious preservation programme and have since restored eight fortification sites which may be visited by the public at advertised times.

Visiting Experts

Dr Matt Pope

is a Senior Research Fellow of the Institute of Archaeology at University College London. A well-respected Palaeolithic archaeologist, Matt is one of the leaders of the team who carried out excavations at La Cotte de St Brelade, Les Varines and other local Ice Age sites this summer.

Dr Philip de Jersey

was born in Guernsey, and studied Geography at Hertford College, University of Oxford. After graduating, he stayed on at Oxford University to study for a doctorate on the late Iron Age in northwest France. He is known as an expert on Celtic coins of the Iron Age. From 1992 to 2008 he was keeper of the Oxford University Celtic Coin Index, and was responsible for the computerisation of the index. Dr de Jersey is an Honorary Research Fellow of the Heberden Coin Room at the Ashmolean Museum and in 1999 was awarded the Council Prize of the British Numismatic Society.

View rarely-seen artefacts, get behind closed doors, learn something new and immerse yourself in the very best of Jersey’s heritage during this week-long event dedicated to exploring and discovering the Island’s history and hidden treasures.

Welcome

NCE AGAIN, we are delighted that the National Trust, Jersey Heritage, Société Jersiaise and The Channel Island Occupation Society have joined forces to celebrate the rich cultural heritage that permeates the very fabric of our Island.

An exciting range of tours, events and activities are on offer throughout the festival: there are Ice Age secrets to uncover, Neolithic graves to track down, candlelit recitals to savour and manor houses to explore. Discover centuries-old embroidery and books, or walk in the footsteps of kings and convicts. We really hope that everyone will take the opportunity to discover some of the treasures which we are so fortunate to have in Jersey.

Enjoy every moment of Hidden Treasures – a festival 250,000 years in the making!

Meet the Seigneur Tour:
Trinity Manor Gardens

This is a rare opportunity to explore the grounds of Trinity Manor, the ancient seat of the Seigneurs of the Fief de la Trinité, by kind permission of the Dame, Mrs P Bell. Learn of the extraordinary house, dramatically re-built in the early years of the 20th century by the eccentric Athelstan Riley, and the gardens redesigned by the current owners. Today, the Trinity Estate still has a working dairy farm with a prize-winning herd. There are landscaped grounds surrounding the Manor and its delightful terrace with a mighty oak, a view of the lake amid tree plantations, and extensive walled gardens. A number of sculptures add surprising interest and character.

REAL TREASURES

A ‘Behind the Scenes’ Jersey Heritage Tour

In 1997 Jersey Heritage had a purpose designed & environmentally controlled building constructed to house the social history collections, which have been gathered together over the last 130 years. Inside this store is an eclectic mix representing the history of a unique Island. Your tour today will take you inside this fascinating, but rarely opened, facility. You’ll find a mammoth skull found at La Cotte de St Brelade alongside the contents of a 19th Century Chemist shop and these, along with a German searchlight used during the occupation in WW2 and a boneshaker bicycle, are amongst the highlights of Jersey Heritage’s reserve collection.

Living With The Enemy
– The Time Team Special
Delve into life in Jersey when it was occupied in World War II. What was life like for everyday people? What did they eat? How did they know what was going on in the outside world? See original trenches built by the occupying forces as the walk passes from country lanes to woodland in an area excavated on Channel 4’s ‘Time Team’. Last stop is the famous Jersey War Tunnels; eat in the Sanctuary Restaurant or explore the tunnels for a truly evocative experience. (Lunch and entrance to the site at own expense).

An Ice Age Trail with Jersey Heritage and the Ice Age Island Team
Jersey’s Ice Age coastline provides an accessible, dramatic and informative landscape for understanding how two million years of climate change shaped the North West Europe in which we live today. There is perhaps no landscape in the region which combines such a concentration of archaeological sites, natural features and vistas which tell our planet’s Ice Age story so clearly. Board the Ice Age bus for today’s tour of the earliest sites of Human occupation in the Island and then visit the archaeology laboratory and store in the company of our Ice Age experts, Dr Matt Pope and Jersey Heritage’s Olga Finch.

Stitched Memories – A Talk with Tea

This exhibition features about thirty samplers – beautifully stitched pieces of embroidery, usually made by young girls as a demonstration or test of their skill in needlework. The earliest on display in the exhibition was made by 7-year-old Elizabeth Anna Marett in 1736, and the most recent is the work of Patricia Bell who stitched it when she was being held the internment camp at Biberach in Germany during WWII. Today samplers are often seen as nostalgic decorative pieces, but in reality their historical role is much more than that. Join Jersey Heritage’s textile expert, Val Nelson, for a fascinating talk about samplers, their history and what they tell us about the women who worked on them. The talk is followed by a home-made Jersey cream tea.

Steam, Motor & Threshing Fayre

The main attraction of the day (weather permitting!) is the demonstration of ‘threshing’ with the traditional steam power method by using our 1941 Société Française threshing machine and the magnificent 1904 ‘Dolly May’ Ransomes, Sims & Jefferies steam traction engine. The wheat crop will have been traditionally harvested during the summer using an old reaper/binder and ‘stooked’ by hand – all very labour intensive.

There will also be other attractions, such as: displays of classic & vintage vehicles, barn engines & model engines, steam train rides in Victorian carriages, small diesel train rides, Jersey Wonder making and traditional accordion music.

Jersey War Tunnels
Jersey War Tunnels is a permanent reminder of the German Occupation of Jersey. The tunnel complex, formerly known as Höhlgangsanlage B, now plays host to a series of galleries detailing Occupation history through the diverse experiences of those who lived through it. Visitors will be led through the events of evacuation, deportation, captivity and siege, to eventual liberation. The tunnel complex, which took almost three and a half years to build, was excavated by forced and slave labourers from all over Europe, some of whom died from the terrible hardship they were made to endure. In addition to the main ‘Captive Island’ exhibition, and to mark the 65th anniversary of the island’s liberation, Jersey War Tunnels has launched two thought-provoking, interactive experiences, ‘Liberation’ and ‘Resistance’ providing greater insight into the issues and hardships faced by islanders.

Elizabeth Castle

Built on a rocky islet in St Aubin’s Bay, Elizabeth Castle has defended Jersey for more than 300 years and is the perfect place to spend a day exploring Jersey’s history. The castle was home to Sir Walter Raleigh while he was Governor of Jersey, from 1600 until 1603, and the future King Charles II during the English Civil War. During the German Occupation, the castle was refortified and used as one of the strong points commanding the sea approaches to St Helier. Climb the battlements, explore the turrets and bunkers and discover the Hermitage where St Helier is thought to have lived around 550 A.D. The castle is accessible at low tide by foot or by the castle ferries, Charming Betty and Charming Nancy, which will transport you across at low or high tide (a small charge applies).

Channel Island Military Museum

The museum is housed in a former German bunker which once formed part of Hitler’s Atlantic Wall defences. All the rooms and corridors are full of artefacts left over from the occupation and the bunker still stands dominant over the beach, showing visitors what it was like during the dark days of war. This major collection of memorabilia has been assembled over many years, with some items are still in the same condition as when they were when last used over 60 years ago.

St Matthew’s Glass Church

The glass work including the font, altar rail, cross and pillars, was created by René Lalique of Paris and is considered to be amongst his greatest achievements. The attraction of St Matthew’s lies in its glass, not the stained glass associated with the windows of ancient churches, but the moulded white glass, or verre blanc moulé-pressée, formulated by Lalique and used by him to make much of the furniture of the church normally associated with wood and stone. Lalique began the work in 1932, commissioned by Florence Boot, Lady Trent, the widow of Jesse Boot, Baron Trent, the founder of Boot's the Chemist. This is a functioning church, please respect service times and worshippers.
